My Story

Arizona's waterways are oasis in the desert, and practically every lake in the lower elevations is man-made. The frigid winters kill-off the bass in shallow lakes, and the scorching summer kills-off the trout. This poses an interesting dilemma for the Arizona angler. Stocking efforts have somewhat compensated for this, but overcrowding is yet another big problem. My advice to fellow Arizonans: Fish in the spring and fall, and fish early in the morning and late in the afternoon. Some of the bigge
