My Story

A different lake than the others in Arizona by virtue of it's being shallow. Almost every other large body of water in Arizona is a canyon lake of about 100-200 feet deep. Mormon Lake is just the opposite maxing out at just 60 ft. Being this shallow means that it warms quickly in spring - making it one of the first fishable lakes on top of the Mogollon Rim. Add to this the wide variety of crappie, walleye, northern pike, large and small mouthed bass, bream, and even catfish makes this large lake
